Occupational Health and Safety (Commonwealth Employment) Act 1991 (Cwth)

This report is provided in accordance with section 74 of the Australian Occupational Health and Safety (Commonwealth Employment) Act 1991 (Cwth) (OHS Act).

Together with other licensed authorities under the Safety, Rehabilitation and Compensation Act 1988 (SRC Act), we have initiated proposals for the rationalisation and simplification of excessive and ineffective regulation of our activities under the OHS Act and the SRC Act. It is our policy to promote a healthy workplace and to create and maintain a safe working environment. We have developed and implemented our own Telstra care health and safety management system to assist us in ensuring a safe working environment is available for our employees and contractors. A rigorous audit and inspection programme supports our Telstra care system.

This programme focuses on leadership in safety together with measurable accountabilities through all levels of management strategically designed to reinforce the value we place on our people and their safety. The Telstra Health and Safety Management System since its inception in 1997 has continued to contribute to Telstra becoming a safer place to work.

Our lost time injuries reduced by a further 40% down to 800 and our lost time injury frequency rate reduced from 12.9 to 9.

The following statistics of accidents and dangerous occurrences and of notices were recorded for the 2000 fiscal year in accordance with section 74 of the OHS Act.

Safety, Rehabilitation and Compensation Act 1998 (Cwth)

This report is provided in accordance with section 107U of the Australian Safety, Rehabilitation and Compensation Act 1988 (Cwth) (SRC Act). As a self insurer, Telstra is licensed under the SRC Act to contract out the administration of its workers' compensation claims to the private sector.

The Telstra return to work and claims management systems place emphasis on early intervention, speedy claims processing and ongoing monitoring of each incident that has resulted in injury. Central to the effective operation of these systems are managers and staff members who work together to create and maintain a safe workplace. The efficiency of these systems has resulted in some cost savings.
